FOR THE SUPREME COURT VACANCY.

Walter B. Vincent Selected by Republican Committee.

Among the Older and Best Known Providence Lawyers.

[Special despatch to The News.]

PROVIDENCE, March 12.—While the matter of supplying the vacancy on the supreme bench caused by the death of Justice Blodgett has not come to the Assembly, it was understood about the State House today that the selection is as good as made. The Republican state committee met today and chose Walter B. Vincent as the lawyer to be elevated to that position. It is now considered that the election is but a matter of form.

Walter B. Vincent is one of the older, and among the best known, lawyers of Providence. He was born August 6, 1845, in Mystic, Conn., received his school education in the Westerly High School and the Peekskill, N. Y., Military Academy and graduated from the University of Albany, N. Y., in 1866. Being admitted to the bar in Albany in 1866 and in Providence in 1867, practically his entire practice in law has been in the latter city. He was at one time a member of the Providence board of aldermen and two years president of that body, and later a member of the house of representatives and clerk of the senate. He is 66 years old.

BRISTOL PUPILS STRIKE.

Children Demand Re-instatement of Principal Bailey.

BRISTOL, March 12.—The controversy over the dismissal of Principal John H. Bailey, Jr., of the Byfield school for participation in politics reached an acute stage today, when 40 of the 60 pupils of the eighth grade, which he taught went on strike until he is re-instated. Bailey who is a Democratic town councilman and a candidate for the same office at the election tomorrow was ordered removed by a quorum of four Republican school committeemen last week.

When he appeared today at school he was dismissed by Superintendent of Schools John P. Reynolds and as he was leaving the school he was cheered by the children who organized a strike. A parade was formed by the children and they marched through the streets carrying banners bearing such legends as "Down with Mr Bailey's enemies," "We Want Mr. Bailey re-instated," and beating time on tin pans and other noise-producing articles. Only 15 children remained at school.

CANTON SITUATION SERIOUS.

Revolters Endeavoring to Oust the Local and Provincial Governments.

HONG KONG, March 12.—The situation at Canton, where revolters under Luk, a brigade chief, are endeavoring to oust the local and provincial governments, is regarded by the consular authorities here as most alarming. European missionaries have been ordered to quit the city at once and all available river vessels are being pressed into service to bring refugees to this city. The Honam yesterday brought 1,700 passengers, and the Fatshan carried 1,300 more.

Several British boats are waiting at their piers in Canton today. On account of the danger of sudden trouble, they are keeping steam up ready to depart on the instant if necessary. The gunboats stationed off Canton are cleared for action and even the stokers are armed to the teeth.

The fighting at Canton began with an attack by brigands several days ago and has continued constantly ever since in various parts of the suburbs. The attack began to assume serious proportions when the soldiers in the Bogue forts suddenly mutinied and surrendered the forts to Luk's men. The invaders forthwith equipped themselves from the arsenal and with modern guns and ammunition took possession of the admiralty building. The number of persons killed or wounded thus far is estimated by refugees at between 100 and 350. The followers of Luk are meeting with stubborn resistance and one of their chiefs has been captured by the loyal troops.

The Hong Kong government is keeping itself fully advised of the situation.

ELIMINATED BY LAWYER.

Roosevelt Withdrawn as Juror in the Carmody Suit.

MINEOLA, N. Y., March 12.—Theodore Roosevelt was drawn as juror No. 7 today in the damage suit of Michael Carmody against the New York Central Railroad, but was quickly eliminated by John J. Graham, counsel for the plaintiff, who challenged the colonel peremptorily. Why he exercised this right the lawyer did not explain.

Carmody had both legs cut off and at a previous trial obtained a verdict of $30,000 against the railroad. The appellate division reversed the judgment and ordered a new trial.

Colonel Roosevelt was plainly disconcerted when he stepped down from the box. "I am ready to do my duty," he said, "but I don't see why I should have to come here day after day if nobody wants me as a juror. I don't see what the boy (Carmody) was afraid of, for I certainly would have given a square deal.

Mr. Graham had approached the colonel so quietly that for a moment or two few were aware that he had been challenged.

"You're a busy man, colonel," the lawyer said," and we will excuse you."

Explaining later why he had challenged the colonel, the lawyer said, "He is a busy man and I think he would be conferring a greater boon on humanity by serving it in other ways than by sitting in this case for three or four days."

FALL RIVER MILLS MEET THE ADVANCE

Thirty-Five Corporations Decide to Increase Wages

Announcement Causes General Rejoicing Among the Business Men.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 12.—A general advance in wages of five per cent will go into effect in 100 print cloth mills controlled by 35 corporations in this city March 25. The mills which made the announcement this afternoon employ 25,000 operatives.

The decision of the manufacturers to fall into line with the mill owners of northern New England was announced at a conference between the executive committee of the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association and the Textile Council. The members of the executive committee in a brief statement said in their opinion that the increase in wages was not warranted at this time, in view of the fact that many of the mills had been obliged to pass their dividends during the past two years. The treasurers, however had decided that it was for the best interests of Fall River to meet the advance announced by mills elsewhere, as they did not wish this city to be behind other textile centres.

The announcement caused general rejoicing among business men who had become somewhat uneasy because of the unrest manifested by certain classes of operatives during the past few weeks.

The Textile Council had decided to ask for a conference with the mill owners this week. The carders', slasher tenders' and spinners' unions will meet tomorrow night to consider the wage question and Thursday evening the weavers and loom fixers will take up the subject. The general opinion is that the five per cent advance will be accepted and the action of these unions will be ratified at a meeting of the textile council Friday night.

Among the print cloth mills in New England which usually pay the Fall River schedule are the China, Webster and Pembroke mills of the Suncook Company of Suncook, N. H., employing 1,500; Hamilton Woolen Company's cotton mills of Amesbury, 800; Corr mills, East Taunton 500; Fiskdale mills, Fiskdale, 500; Chase Mills Burlington, Vt., 500; and Edwards mills, Augusta, Maine, 1,200. The Edwards mills have already announced an advance.

Fall River, in years past has always been the first in the field of agitation for increase of wages. The big six months' strike of 1904-05 is still firmly imbedded in the minds of the city's workers. The near future of the textile industry in this city is being looked forward to with a great deal of interest by textile workers, manufacturers and merchants alike.

REPLY EXPECTED WEDNESDAY.

Operators' Answer May Permit Miners to Submit New Proposition.

NEW YORK, March 12.—A subcommittee of anthracite coal operators was prepared to meet again today for the purpose of completing the draft of the reply refusing the demands of the hard coal workers. The draft of the reply was practically complete yesterday and there were only a few minor details to be incorporated today.

This reply is to be given to the mine workers at a joint meeting tomorrow of the operators' and the miners' representatives, and its form is believed to be such as to permit the miners to submit a new proposition. To each of the demands of the miners the operators will give a detailed reply.

The operators will decline the increase of 20 per cent in wages on the ground that the miners are already obtaining an automatic increase based upon the sliding scale.

The demand for collection of union dues will be refused, on the ground that a statute of the state of Pennsylvania makes this illegal, requiring the payment to employes by employers of "the full amount of wages or earnings in cash." The only exception allowed by law is that miners may agree to have part of their earnings set aside for payment of check weigh men and check docking bosses.

The demand for an eight-hour day is opposed because of the many interruptions due to accidents, miners' holidays and other causes make it impractical.

The obstacle to the demand to pay the miners at the rate of 2,000 pounds to the ton is because the operatives are now paying by the car and the long ton of 2,240 pounds is used as a standard.

Neither President John P. White of the United Mine Workers of America nor any of his colleagues had reached New York today, preparatory to attending tomorrow's meeting, and consequently no expression of their opinion of the outlook was obtainable. Mr. White is expected to reach the city tonight and will hold a conference with other leaders tomorrow morning prior to the meeting with the operators.

A ROUND OF FUNCTIONS.

Knox and Other Americans Highly Entertained in San Salvador.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, March 12.—The round of official functions in honor of Secretary Knox's visit was continued enthusiastically today. The feature of the program was a dress parade of the army on the Campo de Marte. For Secretary Knox the ladies of the city had arranged an excursion to the picturesque city of Santa Tecla or Neuva San Salvador, the capital of the department of La Liberia. Tonight the American visitors will be the guests of honor at a presidential ball in the casino. This will be the final function of Secretary Knox's stay here. He leaves tomorrow.

LARGER THAN LAST YEAR BY $121,200.

New Appropriation Bill Carries a Total of $2,090,149.

Another Petition Against the Newport Police Commission.

[Special despatch to The News.]

PROVIDENCE, March 12.—The annual appropriation bill was reported back by the committee today and shows a cut of but $20,300 from the original draft, with an increase of $121,200 over last year's total. It will come up in the house Thursday and today the Democrats went into caucus to determine their line of action. Another big petition against the Newport police commission act was introduced and referred to the committee which has not yet found it convenient to report back the act. Two acts providing for state supervision of steam boilers and their attendants were the most important acts introduced.

In the senate, the committee on corporations reported acts of incorporation of the Edgar M. Dexter Incorporation and the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of America and from the finance committee a resolution to expend $500 for a card index for the records at the Newport County court house and for extensions of the state highways in Foster and Hopkinton. All went to the calendar.

Senator Sayles of Burrillville introduced an act providing that the town or city where a person is bitten by a dog shall pay the charges of the patient by given the Pasteur treatment. Finance committee.

Senator McKenna of Cumberland proposed an amendment to the state constitution, providing for biennial sessions of the state legislature. Committee on special legislation.

Senator Head of Jamestown introduced an act permitting the construction of a wharf by R. D. Knight at Jamestown. Judiciary committee.

From the calendar were taken and passed the act referring to false statements by persons hiring automobiles or carriages and the two acts extending the state highways in Foster and Lincoln.

In the house Mr. Davis of Foster, for the finance committee, reported the annual appropriation bill, which was made the special order for Thursday.

Mr. Cosseboom of Woonsocket introduced a petition of the Manufacturers' Machine & Power Company to change its name to the Woonsocket Electric Machine & Power Company. Committee on corporations.

Mr. Richards of Providence introduced an act providing for a board of arbitration to settle strikes and lockouts. Committee on labor legislation.

Mr. Lawton of Newport presented the petition of A. L. Marshall and 451 others against the Newport police commission act. Judiciary committee.

Mr. Fortin of Pawtucket introduced a resolution appropriating $1,500 for carrying out the provisions of the pure food and drug law. Finance committee.

Mr. Jennings of Cranston introduced an act amending the law relating to the ownership of property by the Six Principles Baptist Church. Judiciary committee.

Also, an act providing for the state licensing of stationary engineers and an act relating to steam boilers. Judiciary committee.

Also, an act raising the salary of the chief factory inspector to $2,500. Finance committee.

Mr. West of Providence offered his daily resolution on the property qualification question and it was lost.

Mr. Spooner of Middletown thanked the members for their resolution of sympathy for the loss of his mother, last week.

From the calendar was taken and passed the act placing H. J. C. Dubois on the retired list of the militia.

This afternoon the senate judiciary committee held a hearing on the Sunday concert bill and the house judiciary committee a hearing on the osteopathy bill. Both were vigorously opposed and a large number of people were at the hearings.

The appropriation bill, which provides for the operation of the various departments of the state government during the ensuing year, as reported back to the house by the committee on finance, carries a total appropriation of $2,090,149, or approximately $20,000 less than the original bill, introduced at the opening of the session, provided for. The bill is $121,200 larger than the sum appropriated last year, when the amount was $1,968,949. The largest increase is for the Board of State Charities and Corrections, $50,000.

The estimate of the receipts for this year, made by General Treasurer Read, is $2,610,412. The expense of running the state last year, inclusive of the sums carried in the appropriation bill, was $2,398,411.80, and including $50,000 paid on notes $2,448,411.80.

Some of the larger appropriations made in the bill reported back today are: Ex-chief justices of the supreme court, $17,500, or $550 each; justices of the supreme court, $39,500; justices of the superior court, $33,500; mileage of the members of the General Assembly, $50,000; clerks of committees of the General Assembly, $11,400; accounts of the General Assembly, $10,000; payment of jurors' fees $50,000; officers of court fees, $28,000; witness fees in supreme and superior court, $19,000; officers' fees in district courts, $28,000; Rhode Island Normal School, $68,000; public schools, for apportionment by schools, $120,000; for graded high schools, $28,500; for supervision of public schools, services of superintendents, etc. $15,500; teachers' pensions, $33,000; state printing, $75,000; state binding, $15,000.

Some of the large apropriations recommended for departments and institutions are as follows: Board of Agriculture, $20,000; Board of Health, $17,000; Board of State Charities and Corrections $490,000; State Home and School, $48,500 Soldiers' Home, $18,000; Institute for Deaf, $33,000; State Sanitarium, $60,000; State College, $25,000; School for Feeble-Minded, $20,000; military af-

SWEEPING PATENT DECISION.

Supreme Court Upholds Right to Make Restrictions.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court today, upholding the right of holders of patents to make license restrictions as to the way the articles they sell may be used, is regarded by the Department of Justice as extremely important in the administration of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The court stood four to three. Chief Justice White, with whom Justices Lamar and Hughes dissented, voiced in a spirited opinion his dread of the results of the court's rendering, asking who could foretell the extent of monopoly and wrongful restrictions which would arise. As construed by the majority of the court, the chief justice declared the patent law could reach to include within a patent every conceivable thing used in every American household.

The chief justice declared that Congress should act to head off "untold evil" which would follow the court's construction of the law, and arraigned the majority as having broken all precedents. The court in its history, he said, had never failed to do its duty to the whole people and to stand as the protector of every household.

The anti-trust law is being invoked in several cases where it is alleged that patent rights are being overstepped to restrain trade.

The case upon which the highest court ruled today involved alleged infringement in selling supplies for use on a patented rotary mimeograph. A notice on the machine set forth that it was sold on the restriction that it was to be used only with supplies made by the patenting company.

Justice Lurton, who delivered the majority opinion, was joined by Justices McKenna, Holmes and Van de Vanter.

Because of the sweeping bearing of the decision upon the enforcement of the Sherman law, it is not improbable that a re-hearing may be asked to bring the question before a full bench of justices. Justice Day did not participate and the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Harlan has not been filled, though Chancellor Pitney of New Jersey has been nominated but not confirmed by the Senate.

THE FASHION OF WEARING CAPS

From the Rising of the Sun Until Its Going Down Women Have Gone Back to the Pretty Fashion.

[Woman's World.]

From the rising of the sun until the going down thereof, and especially afterward, women have gone back to the pretty fashion of wearing dainty caps of lace or net or lawn, bedecked with ribbons and flowers. Before we knew it the fad was upon us; for it is one of these that developed without any promotion on the part of the powers who devote themselves to creating styles. It came about in the natural order of things, and is only just well launched. We may expect to see it flourish during the spring and summer, along with quaint flowered dress fabrics, long drop earrings and silk bags or "reticules;" for all have been revived. The lady of the early nineteenth century is portrayed today in living pictures.

The greatest number of these caps are made for wear in the evening. Women who stay at home, however, are supplied with bewitching caps for morning wear. They are far from being useless frivolities and, besides improving the appearance in these first trying hours of the day, they are a real protection to the hair, and time-saving. A pert little ribbon-trimmed cap will make a crisp and cheerful note at the breakfast table. Such caps are made of wash laces or nets trimmed with lace, or of sheer batiste or mull and fine embroideries, with trimming of lace and ribbons. Val, Cluny and other laces that can be easily washed are used for them. The lightest of silks and chiffons are used in lining them when linings are needed as in caps of Point de Esprit and other light nets. Rosettes and bows of narrow ribbon, small flowers and, particularly, little ribbon flowers, are used in trimming them.

These caps, for morning wear, are very easily made. A cover made of a circle of the net (or whatever fabric is used) is gathered about the edge to form the cap and a falling ruffle of lace is sewed to the gathered edge as a finish. The circular crown-piece is about 18 inches in diameter and sometimes larger. Quite often the crown-piece is gathered over a circle made of bonnet wire inserted about the edge, which serves as a support. The frill about the face is then sewed to this wire. A band of ribbon with rosettes at the sides, a wreath of small flowers or little bouquets, set at intervals in the falling lace, complete the composition of these delightful head-coverings. An innumerable number of little changes and variations are possible in making these caps. The frill of lace is sometimes omitted across the forehead and a band is substituted, made of ribbon covered with lace.

Caps for evening wear are made of lace or net, of gold or silver tissues, of brocade and tulle, or other fabrics suited to the dressiest headgear. Feathers and ornaments are used as well as flowers and ribbons in adorning them. They are brilliant with tinsel lace and mock-jewel ornaments. Bead and bead fringes help out. Tulle, draped in Oriental fashion about the head, on the lightest of wire foundations, is finished at the front with a cockade and large rhinestone cabochon, making an unforgettable turban.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CASE.

Fall River and had his head washed and plastered.

John Gilbert, Italian, of Fall River, testified. Saw Robertshaw hit defendant three times with the club. Defendant ran over the line, Robertshaw said "Come, get your hat." Defendant said: "Will you hit me?" Robertshaw said: "Sure I will." He seemed to be "very well intoxicated." Witness walked to Tiverton for exercise—and a drink of beer. The officer came along, at first; passed defendant, then returned and took hold of him and hit him. Witness knows Officer Robertshaw well. Hurried off in order not to see the fight between the officer and defendant—went straight into the barroom to get a drink.

Thomas Melior of Massachusetts saw the trouble. Came over to have a drink. Robertshaw did not give the man a chance to move on; hit him with the billy. Saw but one hit. Would surely have seen it if there was more than one hit. "Two babies could have done as much as the two men" when they were down fighting. Witness thought Robertshaw "needed the whole sidewalk."

Witness had been in the barroom an hour and a quarter, but he had only a dime and could get but two drinks. Sometimes it takes him an hour and a quarter to spend five cents. Knew Robertshaw was an officer. Witness had a speaking acquaintance with defendant. Saw his head bleeding and spoke to him, that day. (It was difficult to get at the details of the second encounter between the officer and Maderis; witness said they rolled over "like a ball;" both were on top, both hit each other).

The officer called for help, but couldn't get a man to help him. "All you fellows were glad to see him get licked," said Mr. Phillips. Witness didn't attempt to dispute it; "he said he licked as many a time." Amidst general laughter witness sat down and the court took a recess.

Arthur De Costa of Portsmouth testified. He saw the mix-up. Met defendant coming from the shore. Stopped him to buy clams, if he had any. They stood on the "end" of the sidewalk in a line. In a minute or two, Mr. Robertshaw went by, telling them to move on, so people could pass. Witness said in Portuguese: "He must be full when he can't go by here." They laughed and he heard it and came back, and they laughed some more. Robertshaw hit defendant with the club. Did not show his badge.

In cross-examination witness said he and defendant are Portuguese. They were standing on the curbing. The officer was the only one to go by. He returned and said: "If you fellows don't shut up I'll lock you all up." They said nothing to him. Witness knew he was an officer when Fall River went no license. Robertshaw hit defendant three times with the club. Witness went to clambakes with defendant.

Manuel Mederos was called. He said he could not speak English and Mr. Nolan offered the bail for defendant as interpreter. In order to save time the state accepted him. He put one question to witness—"Where do you live?" "Fall River, Rhode Island," was the answer. Then the interpreter tried to explain something. "What do you want to do—throw up your job?" asked Judge Lee. The interpreter said he was willing to do so. However, he proceeded and the evidence went in quite rapidly.

The officer told witness and others to get off the sidewalk. They began laughing and the officer came back, pushed defendant and hit him three times over the head with his club. Witness saw blood. Defendant went over the state line. Witness also saw the rest of the mix-up. Saw no blood on Robertshaw, whose coat was buttoned, and he never showed a badge.

In cross-examination witness said he doesn't know how he spells his last name. He is not related to defendant. Knew Robertshaw was a special police. When he told them to move they moved and stood on the curbing. When he returned he didn't say a word, but pushed defendant and hit him over the head with the club. Defendant, after crossing to Fall River said he wanted his hat and the officer said: "Come get it." He came across and the officer grabbed for his collar and reached for the club. John grabbed the officer. They both went down. When John had a chance he hit the officer, and when the officer had a chance he hit John. Witness said John did not carry the billy over the line.

Manuel Galvin of Fall River, barber, told his part of the affair. He helped defendant, who had blood on his head. There were three lumps there, one of which was split, about an inch. Washed and plastered his head. The cut was way on the back of defendant's head. The other lumps were on the side of the head.

Antonio deLeima of North Tiverton testified of what he saw when defendant came back for his hat. The line is in the middle of the street. The same time John grabbed the officer, the officer tried to pull out his club. Mr. Nolan was allowed to read to the jury the warrant which defendant swore out against the officer, charging assault in the usual form.

Here defendant rested.

Chief Manchester was re-called. He talked with Officer Robertshaw and walked with him. There were no indications whatever of intoxication or odor of liquor on the officer's breath. The officer was re-called and said he had no liquor whatever that day or the night before. Officers Grinnell and Shatt testified that they found no evidences whatever of liquor. The restaurant keeper was re-called and said he saw no evidences of it.

At 4:46 the court adjourned to 9:30 a. m. Tuesday.

PRAISES THE BIRMINGHAM.

Rear Admiral Osterhaus Commends the Handling of Cruiser by Commander Charles F. Hughes.

Unqualified commendation for the manner in which scout cruiser Birmingham has been handled has been sent to the Navy Department by Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet. The commendation is given as a result of the trips made recently in search of derelicts and missing naval vessels during the storm which raged along the Atlantic in January.

The Birmingham is commanded by Commander Charles F. Hughes, who was a member of the naval board which last December made the final report on the wreck of the Maine in Havana harbor. He was assigned to sea duty as commander of the Birmingham in January of this year. Great satisfaction is expressed in naval circles over the commendation of Commander Hughes, as he is a great favorite among naval officers. The note sent by Rear Admiral Osterhaus to the Navy Department and to Commander Hughes says of the Birmingham:

"Commissioned December 15, 1911; coaled, took on stores, and left for Norfolk, Va., December 26, arriving December 29. Left January 3, 1912, and took part in manoeuvres, during which she experienced with the rest of the fleet a severe gale, throughout which she was engaged in scouting and searching for missing destroyers, steaming at high speeds, and from which she escaped with no damage to her material. From January 11 to January 16 she was detailed to supervise the preparation of two destroyers, which had put into Bermuda from distress, for the passage to Hampton Roads, Va., where she arrived January 25. After coaling at Hampton Roads she proceeded with all despatch to Key West at high speed, arriving there January 22. Left Key West January 26 and arrived at Guantanamo January 28, and immediately prepared for power and endurance runs. These runs were completed very successfully, and the results were practically equal to those of her trial trip. In seven weeks this ship coaled seven times.

"This record would not have been made without the display of great energy and effiecency on the part of the officers and crew, and reflects much credit on both. It promises much success for the ship during her present commission. The commander-in-chief has much pleasure in congratulating and commending the officers and crew for this good work."

TAYLOR SYSTEM DISAPPROVED.

House Labor Committee Unanimous in Decision Against Making Machines of Workmen.

The Taylor system of shop management and similar systems are disapproved in a unanimous report filed by the House committee on labor, which instituted an investigation when it was proposed to employ such a system in navy yards and government workshops. The committee says there are a number of excellent features in the Taylor plan but no system of shop management has yet been presented which should be accepted by the government.

Referring to the "speeding up" processes, which caused the most vigorous objection of the labor unions, the committee reports: "Because there are some loafers is no reason why the remainder of these workmen should either be compelled or induced to work up to the very edge of the breaking strain. There is need for production at the lowest cost, but economic necessity cannot justify requiring workmen to speed up to the highest point at which they can continue from day to day and from year to year without injury to their health and strength. To place workmen in a position of that kind is to put them in the position of a beast of burden required to perform day by day a given task."

The committee says it approves standardization and systematization of methods, but not at the expense of making mere machines of the workmen. Criticising "stop watch methods," the report continues: "A machine is an inanimate thing—it has no life, no brain, no sentiment and no place in the social order. With a workman it is different. He would be less than a man if he did not resent the introduction of any system which deals with him in the same way as a beast of burden or an inanimate machine."

The committee made an investigation of the Taylor and similar methods following threats of walk outs in the government arsenals.

INK ON THE CARPET.

If an ink spot gets on the carpet slip a pan under it immediately, pour cold water through it and then cover it with a little heap of salt. When the salt has become dark with ink remove it and put a fresh layer in its place. An ink stain is less likely to be spread by pouring water through it than by dipping it into the water.

PERSONALS.

...A $100,000 roadway and memorial arch for the home of Thomas Jefferson is proposed in a bill introduced in the House, by Representative Flood of Virginia. Mr. Flood desires $50,000 appropriated to build a highway from Main street Charlottesville, Va., to Monticello. At the gate to Monticello he would have erected an archway to cost $50,000. Monticello is owned by Representative Jefferson Levy of New York.

...It is announced that Captain Roald Amundsen's debts on account of his South Pole expedition amount to [illegible] kronen (approximately $15,000). A special committee which has been appointed has sent out an appeal to Norwegians to subscribe this amount to enable the committee to cable Amundsen at Hobart that his debts have been paid. Later a national subscription, as will befit the explorer, will be started.

...Andrew Carnegie contributed [illegible] to help defray the expenses incurred in Colonel Roosevelt's African expedition, but the contribution was made after Mr. Carnegie had talked to Dr. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution. Colonel Roosevelt never asked Mr. Carnegie to contribute a cent for that purpose. This fact is contained in a statement made by Mr. Carnegie, who declines to say how much he contributed.

...Talcott Williams of the Philadelphia Press, who has been selected for the head of the new school of journalism at Columbia University founded by the late Joseph Pulitzer, has had nearly 40 years experience in journalism on the New York World, New York Sun, San Francisco Chronicle, Springfield Republican and Philadelphia Press. It is said of him by one who knows that "perhaps there is no man in the active field today more representative of the best in American journalism. He is one of the few whose personality has not been concealed behind the anonymity so characteristic of pure editorial work within a newspaper office."

Coddington.

Last Friday evening under the direction of the ladies of the Civic League a parents' evening was held at the Coddington with a happy variation in the usual program. After remarks by your superintendent on the utilization of the school buildings for civic purposes, Misses Thomas and Field explained what had been done and what could still be done in this civic center for youths and adults. The evening class then gave a series of physical exercises and dancing drills, furnished music and served refreshments.

Seeds.

Letters just received from Senator Wetmore and Representative O'Shaunessy announce that seeds have been or will be sent to all the schools for the gardens.

Mr. Lull also read the report of Truant Officer Topham, as follows:

To the Honorable Public School Committee of the City of Newport:

I have the honor to submit the following as my report from February 12, 1912, to March 11, 1912: Number of cases investigated (reported by teachers), 143; number of cases of truancy (public 13, parochial 0), 13; number out for illness and other causes, 130; number of different children truants, 10; number found not attending school, 2; number sent to public school, 0; number sent to parochial school, 0; number of certificates issued (14-15 years), 1.

Unless the attendance at school of John and Richard Emmett of 109 Connection street and of Edward and James Suggs of Shiloh court is more regular, I shall be obliged to prosecute them or their mothers.

In the absence of Mr. Peckham, who is ill, Mr. Cozzens read the following report of the finance committee:

To the Public School Committee:

The expenditures of the school department for February were as follows:

Supervision	$250.00
Clerk	70.83
Truant Officer	100.00
Salaries, day schools	9,126.92
Salaries, evening schools	159.35
Janitors	970.81

Light and power	80.19
Books of reference	90.26
Text-books	12.50
Supplies	789.06
Fuel	894.32
Printing and advertising	29.25
Incidentals	150.25
Total	$13,199.38

Miss Hunter, from the committee on text-books and curriculum, gave notice that the committee at the next meeting will move to substitue Funk & Wagnall's Standard Dictionary for the Webster Standard Dictionary, which is worn out.

Dr. Porter made a request from Miss Sarah L. Currin, to be allowed to leave the school Friday afternoons at 3:55, as in winters past, and the request was granted.

Superintendent Lull called attention to section 4 of rule XI, which makes the days of the Rhode Island Institute holidays. He said that heretofore the Institute was held two days in October or November and there was some complaint that the strain was too much, so the teachers of the state voted to have one day in the fall and one in the spring. Now he found that a majority of the teachers in Newport prefer to teach school next Friday rather than attend the Institute. The figures were Institute 42; no Institute, 62. Yet the program for this session has been made unusually attractive, each grade has a special session in the morning and some another in the afternoon, and there is a general meeting in the afternoon. There are lectures on subjects of importance by teachers of the Normal School and professors of the college. He asked what the committee wished done in this case. The committee believed the Teachers' Institute is for the benefit of the teachers and of the schools and that the teachers ought to attend. Mr. Lull said that for the teachers of English in the high school it would be worth more to attend the meeting in Boston Saturday, where special attention is given to that study. It was the unanimous opinion of the committee that the Institute should be attended by the teachers as in the past and that the rule needed no attention.

Superintendent Lull reported on the school census, which had been carefully gone over in the office and seemed to be as acurate as a census could be. It showed a loss of 29 compared with last year. Mr. Lull said he was sorry for this, as he would have liked to see a steady gain, but there was an apparent loss. It had been expected that down town would show a loss and up town a gain, as there had been a noticeable increase in the region about the Mile Corner and the Coggeshall School, and the census figures proved that this idea was correct. The figures take children from 5 to 17 inclusive and not those of the school age, so that the department has two lists. The figures of tme1912 census are:

Public schools	3,410
Parochial schools	1,023
Private schools	112
No school	581
	5,126

The total for 1911 was 5,155, showing a loss this year of 29.

Mr. Gatzenmeier asked for permission to use the Sloyd room of the Industrial School some Saturday evenings for meetings of the Newport Boy Scouts, the room to be used not for work but for meeting. The request was granted.

There were requests from two teachers for vacations. Both felt that unless they have a vacation before the end of the school year they will break down physically. This opinion was shared by their physicians and the superintendent also felt that they should have a vacation or they would break down. Miss Caswell asked for four days before the Easter vacation, April 1-4, and Miss Brazier for about three weeks following vacation. There was a general discussion over the question whether or not they came under the head of absent on account of sickness and it was finally voted to give them three days' pay. They were granted the vacations asked for under those conditions.

The board adjourned.

Under the convict lease system in North Carolina a woman saved her husband from confinement in jail by making the highest bid for his services and during 30 days she is his legal custodian and boss.

A BOOK FOR PARENTS.

Dr. O. Edward Janney Writes of "The White Slave Traffic in America."

"The White Slave Traffic in America," by Dr. O. Edward Janney, is a book which should be read by parents and social workers. Dr. Janney is well qualified to write on this subject, having made a careful study of it in this country and abroad. He is chairman of the National Vigilance Committee for the Suppression of the White Slave Traffic, and is in a position to know the facts.

The purpose of the book is to call attention to the nefarious business which is conducted in this country. Parents, teachers and others having charge of young people need to be warned of the dangers threatening young women through adroit agents. Social workers also need to have suggested to them methods by which they may assist in the suppression of this evil. Dr. Janney has presented the truth in a sane and proper manner, and in a way which will call forth sympathy and support from all right-minded persons.

The book is divided into three parts: "The White Slave Traffic," describing the thing itself and showing how girls are procured and then kept in slavery, ending with an account of the New York white slave grand jury; "The Sources of the Traffic," in which are discussed the underlying causes, the wrong training of children, the dangers of the city, employment agencies and steerage conditions; "The Suppression and Prevention of the Traffic," dealing with the vigilance movement, the activity of the government, the international treaty, improved methods of immigration, politics and vice, a living wage and healthful recreations.

The book is published by the National Vigilance Committee.

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

The Daily News is on sale in Providence the evening of publication at Union Station.

EXPORT NEWS FROM NEWPORT.

The Daily News has tried, by reproducing news from Newport as it appeared in out-of-town papers, to show how little dependence can sometimes be placed upon the truth of matter so there printed. A little consideration will reveal the reason for the sending of exaggerated stories. Most correspondents work "on space"—that is, they receive pay only for the matter printed, according to the space it occupies in the paper. It is not every day that many things occur in a city the size of Newport which would be considered worth printing in a large city daily if a correspondent confined himself strictly to facts. Unless he greatly colors the story and weaves it about people "prominent in society," and the incident makes a "great sensation," the matter is declined by the paper receiving it and the writer has his labor for his pains. Much of the "news" sent from Newport is for "export only."

O'SHAUNESSY IN A NEW DISTRICT.

It will be a new experience in this state if, as is rumored, Congressman O'Shaunessy should decide to run next fall from the Third district instead of the First, in which he lives and which he is now representing. There is nothing in the law to prevent this action at any time, and yet it has seldom and perhaps never been done in Rhode Island, where it has been customary for a candidate for Congress to make the contest in his own district. The reason given for the possible departure from this custom by Mr. O'Shaunessy is that there is a better opportunity for the Democrats to win in the new Third district than in the new First. This estimate of the conditions is probably correct, though it is not possible to figure very accurately the probable vote in the districts as now divided, the most satisfactory calculation being by means of the returns from the last Congressional election in the various cities and towns. In a general way it has been estimated, however, that the Democrats have a better chance in the Third district than in either of the others.

In case Congressman O'Shaunessy should decide to run from the Third district there will be considerable interest in this part of the state as to whom the Democrats will select to represent them as a candidate in the First, as it is virtually certain that the Republican candidate will be former Congressman Sheffield of this city. It had been expected that these two men would be found again arrayed against each other and it was anticipated that there would be a lively and interesting battle for the victory at the polls, similar to that two years ago when Mr. Sheffield lost. This new rumor, that Mr. O'Shaunessy may seek honors from a new constituency in the Third district, places another phase on the situation and makes it probable that Mr. Sheffield will have a different opponent instead of his former antagonist. The decision of Mr. O'Shaunessy on this point will be awaited with interest here and in case he determines to change his campaigning district there will be anxiety to know who will be Mr. Sheffield's Democratic opponent.

REACHING THE SOUTH POLE.

Although we shall know a great deal more after all of Amundsen's story shall be told in detail than we do now, there are a few comparisons between reaching the North Pole and reaching the South Pole, which it is tolerably safe to make. The North Pole is the one which has been most sought, because it is nearer the maritime nations, and chiefly because it was closely connected with the search for the Northwest Passage. And for a long time there was a strong commercial motive for that. Therefore a great deal more was known about the ways of approaching the North than the South Pole. Vessels could be navigated nearer to the North than to the South Pole and this apparently made the search for the former the easier, because it reduced the sledge journey.

The very fact that a vessel could be driven nearer the North than the South Pole proves to have been the reason why the final dash was far easier in the case of the South than of the North. The latter is situated in the middle of an ocean; the former in the middle of a continent. For some hundreds of miles the journey to the North Pole is over floating ice, and this breaks apart and opens stretches of water which it is often impossible for sledges to cross. Then the ice fields drift up against each other and the broken edges pile up almost insurmountable walls of ice. In seeking the South Pole the journey after leaving the ship is longer than Peary's, but is on solid ground. There is no danger of the ice opening under foot or of mountains of ice being suddenly thrown up in the way.

The sledge route is so much surer at the south than at the north end of the world that the South Pole would have been found a great while ago if it had been searched for one quarter as diligently as the North Pole has been. Shackleton, who went pretty near the South Pole, and Scott, who may perhaps have reached it, and Amundsen, who accomplished the feat, are three of a comparatively small number of explorers who have dared the Antarctic dangers.

TOO SOON FOR A DARK HORSE.

The suggestion which has been made in several quarters that both the President and the ex-President be dropped and Justice Hughes be put forward as the Republican candidate is altogether premature, if it be not wholly impracticable. The party would make defeat absolutely certain if it should turn now from Taft, the candidate by logic and precedent, and Roosevelt, the candidate of discontent and agitation, and try to centre its interest on a man who is neither the one thing nor the other. If the Hughes movement should become formidable there would still be enough disappointed Taft and Roosevelt men to invite defeat in November.

Of course the convention may reach a point at which a "dark horse" may opportunely be introduced. If the balloting should develop the inability of the Taft men or the Roosevelt men to win, then there must be a search for a third candidate, preferably some one about whom little has been said, and to whom the convention might turn without much reflection but in a spirit of desperation.

That was the situation which occurred in 1880, only the convention that year was complicated by three formidable candidates. There was Sherman, the administration candidate, and Blaine, the candidate of enthusiasm, and Grant, the candidate of the political managers. Where there are three the chances of a deadlock are of course much greater than where there are only two. Garfield was sprung on the convention late in the balloting, and named because no one of the other three could be. Where there are only two there must be a large scattering vote to prevent a nomination.

If Taft and Roosevelt should defeat each other there would be a fine opening for Justice Hughes, but there is no use in talking about him or any other third candidate until Taft, who has all the advantages of position, and Roosevelt, who has most of the advantages of intense feeling and agitation, shall have each made the other's nomination impossible. Moreover, it might as well be remembered that when the administration has had a candidate it has nominated him every time except in 1880.

It has been said many times, but it is a good thing to say again, and not forget, that the outlook for the municipal treasury during the present year is quite uncertain. Under the circumstances it will be the part of wisdom for the Representative Council to consider very carefully every proposition for increase in the budget. A year hence we shall know more nearly than now the amount of money at our command, to be spent in street and other improvements. The new work in excess of that to be reported favorably by the Committee of Twenty-Five might all be highly desirable and proper to be done under favorable circumstances, but now does not seem to be the time to do it. A good many things in this life must wait.

The friends of President Taft believe his cause has been helped rather than hurt by the defeat or emasculation of the arbitration treaties in the Senate. The treaties, they argue, were so popular with the people of this country that the Democratic party will bear the odium of having destroyed them and this situation will rebound to the credit of Taft. The action of the Senate, for the same reason, will help the President in his contest for the Republican nomination, as Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's manager, was one of the insurgent Republicans who voted with the Democrats to weaken the treaties.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel takes issue with the opposition to the initiative, referendum and recall and in support of President Taft. In an address at Indianapolis he lauded the Taft administration as a complete fulfilment of the Republican platform pledges of 1908 and a strict continuation of the policies inaugurated by President Roosevelt. Without mentioning Colonel Roosevelt's name, but leaving no doubt as to whom he meant, he said that "we have to confess that some in our own party have not only loyally accepted and [illegible] Mr. Bryan's [illegible], but have [illegible] and expounded the doctrine of his remedies."

Congressman Gallagher of Illinois claims that the present management of professional base ball clubs is "the most audacious and autocratic trust in the country," that base ball is "in the iron grip of monopoly" and players are "enslaved and forced to accept salaries and terms or be forever barred from playing." He asks Congress to investigate organized base ball as an illegal combination. As several professional players are receiving salaries of $7,000 and more a year, and many others $3,000, $4,000, $5,000 or $6,000, there are many in the country who would be willing to be thus "enslaved."

The Massachusetts senate and house have agreed on a Presidential preferential primary bill which will soon be in the hands of the governor for his approval. It abolishes all conventions for the selection of delegates to national conventions, and the voters of the state, in party primaries, will April 30 express their preferences for Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates, the majority thus instructing the delegates selected at these primaries how they shall vote in Chicago and Baltimore.

If there is good reason for raising the salary of any employe of the city—that is, if the employe is not now receiving as much pay as he would if working for an individual and not for the city the petition for an increase should be granted. As a matter of fact, most if not all on the city's roll are paid salaries which are at least fully commensurate with those received in like employment. In most cases the duties are light and the hours short.

The situation in China is not yet on a real peace basis. It is reported that Pekin is relatively quiet, but only because armed peace holds sway and the legation is closed and guarded by cannon. Stories of anarchy, atrocities and suffering are continually coming in from the northern provinces, and it is evident that the country is far from a settled condition.

Colonel Roosevelt objects to being peremptorily challenged off a jury and not allowed to serve. He doesn't fancy the recall when it takes that form. This experience, however, may be only the precursor of another peremptory challenge, to be administered at Chicago in June.

The Democrats are still winning in Maine. In five municipal elections four of them were elected mayor and all were re-elections. Maine had not for a long time, until two years ago, given its votes for Democratic candidates, but seems to like the change.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE SLAV.

A New Kind of Great Man May Appear in America Before this Century is Over.

[Hartford Times.]

Biologists have determined that where two related varieties of a race are crossed, the offspring are apt to exceed their parents in bodily—and presumably intellectual—vigor. Where two highly differentiated varieties are crossed, however, there is a marked tendency to revert to the characteristics of the original race from which both sprang. The deduction rests largely on the results of crossing two highly differentiated artificial breeds of pigeons, the pouter and the fantail. The offspring of these showed at once the marks of the wild rock pigeons, the ancestor of all modern varieties. We may notice the same phenomenon in the chance mating of our common doves of the white and reddish varieties. The blue color with the black barred wings at once re-appeared in the young.

This tendency to revert to the original type may appear as the result of the mixing of races in this country. The original settlers in our country were all, or nearly all, from closely related families of Teutonic race: English, Scotch, Scotch-Irish, Hollanders and Germans, with a few Scandinavians. Men of the generation which fought the Revolutionary war, though the mixture of races was then far from complete, were superior to an equal number from the old countries in bodily vigor and intelligence. The Huguenots of South Carolina and New York, though a shade farther removed from the common stock, were also near enough to show marked improvement in their children wherever inter-marriage took place, as is shown by the eminence in our early history of men bearing French names. To this it might be objected that many of the able Americans of the early period were of pure English or Welsh or even Irish blood, but after making all due allowances for the cases of Adams, Washington and a few others, it is evident that the admixture of kindred races produced a superior breed of men.

In our country there is likely to be in the present century a large infusion of Slavic and southeast European blood into the body of our citizenship. These races are not so nearly related to the peoples of northwestern Europe as these peoples are to each other. We may see more or less of reversion to the original savage man in cases in which members of these distantly related races intermarry. At present they keep distinct as a rule, but it is impossible that in time they should not melt into the body of citizens. Nobody knows exactly what were the [illegible] peculiarities or the mental and physical traits of this original Aryo-European. He must have been dark and pretty strong physically. He was, no doubt, a fighter and possessed of considerable latent ability, since he is the progenitor of the Greeks, the Romans, the Germans and the French. But he was primitive and if he reappears in this country he will bring with him primitive strength and primitive passions. He may be violent in his actions and a dangerous citizen, but, really, the environment may subdue him to decorous behavior.

It would seem quite possible that a new kind of great man may appear in America before the century is over, a reversion not to the cave dweller, but to his remote [illegible] who was [illegible] the models of modern Europe, the pre-Homeric man who made Homer possible, the Adam who did not fall [illegible] of the human race and drew up out of his time some of the roots of law and literature and [illegible]. The modern "Mid-rock" will be a man of natural power; he may be a man of genius. But he will be for us a new kind of man, though, in reality, a very old one.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Pawtucket Succeeds Hughes on Democratic Committee.

Candidate for Junior Vice Department Commander—Carnegie's Gift Toward a Church Organ.

At a special meeting of the Democratic city committee of Pawtucket Monday evening the resignation of Chairman Joseph A. Hughes as a member of the state central committee was accepted and former Mayor John J. Fitzgerald elected to fill the vacancy. There was a discussion of ways and means for bringing out a full registration of the party this year, and tentative plans were formulated to be carried out later. The consensus of opinion was in effect that there would be an unusually large registration this year and that the Democratic vote in that city next fall would be a record one. Although no specific reason was vouchsafed for the retirement of Chairman Hughes from the state central committee at this time, it has been a matter of gossip for some days that such action was contemplated, the reason advanced being a desire on the part of the former mayor to participate in the fight in the State central committee against the direct primary system adopted for the selection of a national committeeman and the delegates and alternates to be sent to the Baltimore convention.

Tower Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Pawtucket, has unanimously voted to present the name of Robert J. Sanford, commander of the post, to the department encampment to be held in Bristol in April, as a candidate for junior vice department commander of the state. Commander Sanford was elected to his present office in 1909 and appointed department patriotic instructor by Past Department Commanders William O. Milne and Francello G. Jillson. Since his election and appointment he has performed the duties of commander and instructor in an efficient and capable manner, and it is through his diligent and zealous work as an officer in Tower post, having added 40 comrades to the post during his period of three years as commander, that he is being endorsed as one who would be competent and faithful and suited to perform the work incumbent on the position of junior vice department commander. A committee was appointed to assist in placing the name of the commander as a candidate among the members of the Grand Army in this state and to arrange for the trip to Bristol on the day of the encampment.

Aided by the offer of a substantial donation from Andrew Carnegie the First Baptist Church of East Providence Centre will soon have a handsome new organ, which is expected to cost about $1,500. Of this amount the members of the church have received assurances that Mr. Carnegie will give one half. The negotiations have been pending several weeks, but it has now been voted to authorize the making of a contract. Application for assistance was made several years ago, and no reply was received. Another letter was sent about two years ago and was not answered. About three months ago the third letter was sent, with the result that an application blank to be filled out was received from those in charge of Mr. Carnegie's donation bureau. The blank was filled and returned, and about two weeks ago the information was received that Mr. Carnegie would give one half if the church raised the remainder. The committee announces that $1,000, which will be needed to pay for installing the instrument and making necessary alterations, has been raised.

The committee in charge of the plans for the observance of the seventieth anniversary of the deciding engagement of the Dorr rebellion has set the date of the exercises for June 19 at Chepachet, with a program which will continue throughout the day. The exercises will be held under the auspices of the Rhode Island Citizens Historical Association and the president of that organization, T. W. Bicknell, will make the principal address at the unveiling of the monument. He will deal with the character of Thomas Wilson Dorr and the principles involved in the state's civil strife, which culminated June 27, 1842. The association will open headquarters in Providence Thursday of this week. The principal event of the afternoon will be the dedication of the "Hall of History," with short addresses by members and guests. The hall is to be devoted to historical uses and will be available for three organizations, the Rhode Island Citizens' Historical Association, the Rhode Island School of History and the National Society of the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims. The school of history aims at the systematic teaching of Rhode Island history in the public schools. Dr. E. S. Ninde, pastor of the Mathewson Street Methodist Episcopal Church, will speak Thursday afternoon on "The Romance of Egyptian Discovery."

The dismissal of John H. Bailey, Jr., principal of the Byfield School at Bristol, and the declination of Miss Ina P. Warren to fill his place, resulted Monday in the abandonment of the sessions of the eighth grade, which Mr. Bailey had taught. During the afternoon the school committee, which voted to dismiss Mr. Bailey on account of his political activities, held a special session. Mr. Bailey was dismissed by vote of the committee because the principal was held to be guilty of infraction of the recently passed rule, forbidding activity in politics by the teaching corps of the town. There are 59 pupils in the eighth grade and a large number of these signed a petition, which was presented to the committee, at its meeting, urging that Mr. Bailey be reinstated. No action was taken on the petition and no further action was taken regarding the filling of Mr. Bailey's position.

An increase of wages amounting to five per cent in the Fall River cotton mills and those in New Bedford by April 1 is said to be practically certain, as a result of the advance voted by the textile operators whose home offices are in Boston. No formal decision to this effect has yet been announced, however. If the predicted increase at Fall River and New Bedford take place it is stated that Rhode Island mill men will probably follow suit, according to their usual custom. The Rhode Island mill owners have not yet conferred concerning any raise of wages, but action in Fall River and New Bedford will almost surely be followed by similar action here.

Frank F. Davis, who recently was appointed a member of the tax commission, has tendered his resignation as town clerk and town treasurer of Glocester, to take effect on the qualification of his successors. Both resignations were accepted and Henry A. Sayles was appointed town clerk to hold office until the next annual election. Mr. Sayles also was appointed town treasurer under the same conditions.

Dr. George J. Thurber, for 25 years a practising dentist in Providence, died Monday afternoon, the result of a paralytic shock suffered last August. Dr. Thurber was a son of George J. and Sarah J. Thurber and was born in Providence December 23, 1854. He was a descendant of the Samuel Thurber family, whose progenitor settled in Rhode Island in 1700. He was also a descendant of Roger Williams.

Frederick Kenney Sprague, for several years prominently identified with the manufacturing jewelry industry of Providence is dead after an illness of nearly two years. He was about 42 years of age. While still in his 'teens, Mr. Sprague organized the famous old South Providence Drum Corps, which later became the nucleus of the United Train of Artillery Drum Corps, whose services were greatly sought for parading purposes. He was also a member of Providence Lodge, No. 14, Order of Elks, and of the United Workmen. He had been an officer for several years in the Modoc Club and was also President of the Camp Rest Association.

VERDICT OF GUILTY.

ision of the Jury in the Maderls Case, for Assault.

Counter-Complaint, Against Robertshaw Continued, and Finn Seduction Case on Trial.

[illegible] superior court session proceeded [illegible] this morning, Judge Lee pre[illegible] The house was packed.

Mr. Levy called up the case of [illegible] vs. Johnson, assigned for next Thursday. He understood the criminal docket would last until then. The matter was passed temporarily.

Frederick Hunt, formerly assistant physical director of the Boys' [illegible] Fall River, testified for the [illegible] in the Maderis case. He talked [illegible] Robertshaw, before 11 o'clock [illegible] day in question. Stood near him [illegible] no evidences of intoxication, [illegible] ever; smelled no liquor. Saw [illegible] again shortly after; helped patch [illegible] up in the drug store. Talked with [illegible] Smelled no liquor and saw [illegible] evidences of intoxication. Mr. No[illegible] asked witness if he had ever been [illegible] tender; he said no. A policeman? [illegible] Was so near Robertshaw that [illegible] I have smelled liquor and seen [illegible] if Robertshaw had been [illegible] to the best of witness's [illegible] would swear that Robertshaw [illegible] not been drinking.

[illegible] Simpson saw Robertshaw and [illegible] with him when he was brought [illegible] witness's saloon. Will swear he [illegible] sober; found no evidence whatever of drinking about him.

[illegible] LaVault, the druggist, testified [illegible] he found no such indications. [illegible] would swear he had not been [illegible]

Mr. Nolan argued for defendant, [illegible] that defendant, already [illegible] having been struck with the [illegible] three times, acted solely in self-defense. The officers must have been [illegible] drunk or crazy to act as he did. [illegible] had a right to come back [illegible] his hat, and to defend himself if [illegible] officer came at him again. The [illegible] must have resulted from [illegible] not from the club. Defendant's [illegible] is a good one; he has been 16 [illegible] in one employment and was [illegible] laid hands on by an officer be[illegible] he went to the police station. [illegible] was told there was nothing against him.

No doubt the crowd was indignant [illegible] an innocent man attacked by [illegible] officer, who had no reason at all [illegible] use his club. Defendant was not [illegible] arrest, and used no unnecessary force in defending himself. Had defendant not gone to the police and [illegible] his version the matter would [illegible] have come to court at all. This [illegible] means much to a man who has [illegible] stainless reputation; would any man [illegible] the jury have done less than de[illegible] did? Some of them would do [illegible] in defense of their rights.

Mr. Phillips argued from 10:33. The [illegible] is not did Robertshaw attack [illegible] but did defendant attack [illegible] All admit that the officer [illegible] the man to move on. Defendant [illegible] he said, "All right," and started [illegible] The man did move. The officer [illegible] quietly and properly. Every [illegible] but defendant admits knowing [illegible] was an officer; why did [illegible] say "All right, mister," and [illegible] move? Defendant saw the billy [illegible] Robertshaw was an officer. Why did defendant run across the [illegible] where a Tiverton officer could [illegible] reach him, and stop right there? [illegible] just a row, it would have [illegible] just the same in Massachu[illegible] he ran over the line and [illegible] come back that day. He [illegible] he had fought an officer which [illegible] has a right to do; and he did [illegible] come back until after dark.

Robertshaw told him he would get [illegible] and use the club, if he came [illegible] over the line; and defendant [illegible] back and went right to Robertshaw to fight him. Robertshaw drew [illegible] billy to defend himself from this [illegible] defendant, who admits that he [illegible] Robertshaw down. He punched and thumped Robertshaw, and used [illegible] billy on him. That is not self-defense. Witnesses show that Robertshaw was not intoxicated. It is not [illegible] for officers to drink while on [illegible] "No evidence of that sort" said the court, to the amusement of the [illegible]

Defendant's witnesses are prejudiced. [illegible] threatened to thump the head of [illegible] man who started to stop the fight. [illegible] stood around to see defendant [illegible] the stuffing out of the officer who was on his back crying for [illegible] And they have come to court to [illegible] on him" again. The officer was [illegible] to do his duty and defendant, [illegible] he was an officer, "beat him [illegible]" Mr. Phillips closed at 11:02.

The court charged the jury. An assault is any unlawful attempt, or of[illegible] of violence, coupled with the [illegible] to carry it out. If the blow [illegible] "assault and battery." The [illegible] is not: Was the officer drunk [illegible] Something has been said about [illegible] assault on defendant; that is only [illegible] issue. The question is whether [illegible] defendant committed an assault on [illegible] Robertshaw. The state must overcome [illegible] presumption of innocence by proof [illegible] a reasonable doubt, such a [illegible] as would cause a man to [illegible] a business project.

The court then reviewed the evidence. The officer had a perfect right [illegible] the man to move. Defendant [illegible] move. The officer returned, [illegible] hold of him. Defendant [illegible] him, and the officer drew his [illegible] hit him. Defendant ran [illegible] the line, and returning, osten[illegible] his cap, ducked down, [illegible] the officer by the legs, threw [illegible] and pummelled him with [illegible] billy. Defendant gives his [illegible] The state thus claims two as[illegible] the officer's story is true, [illegible] is guilty. If there is a reas[illegible] doubt, or defendant's story [illegible] give defendant the bene[illegible] doubt.

[illegible] state claims that the more se[illegible] assault was when defendant [illegible] over the line, threw the [illegible] down and struck him. Even [illegible] were not proved in the first [illegible] the state's story is true of [illegible] part, defendant is guilty. [illegible] tells a different story. He [illegible] to come over the line to [illegible] A man is not obliged to [illegible] he may use all the force nec[illegible] defend himself, but no more. [illegible] attacked and could have de[illegible] himself by throwing the offi[illegible] ground, and yet went be[illegible] and hit the officer, he is [illegible] throwing the officer down [illegible] sufficient, then more could [illegible] lawfully. As to self-defense, [illegible] who claims it must prove [illegible] complaint against Robertshaw, [illegible] assault, was in order. As [illegible] jurors had heard the evidence [illegible] was, of necessity, continued. [illegible] recess, the indictment against [illegible] Finn, for seduction, was [illegible] trial, Mr. Phillips appearing [illegible] state and Mr. Nolan for de[illegible] Both were desirous of ex[illegible] the idle crowd, which has been done, in another county, but the court said the public could not be excluded.

While the jurors were being called the jury in the Maderis case came in with a verdict of guilty.

Jurors called for the Finn case were, Howard Thurston, Portsmouth; Anderson D. Allen, Little Compton; Walter A. Slocum, Portsmouth; Frederick Fadden, Edward J. Barry, Edward Otto, James T. Kaull, Charles S. Hammond, Samuel C. Burns, Newport; William Barclay, Portsmouth; Edward T. Lee, Newport; Ralph E. Dodge, New Shoreham; Chester C Bacheller, Newport; Alfred Carr, Middletown; John P. Steele, Newport; Marcus M. Wilcox, Tiverton; James E. Johnson, Newport; George A. Seabury, Tiverton; John A. Sullivan, Newport; Nathan B. Brown, Middletown; John E. Watson, Jamestown.

Messrs. Barry and Lee said they knew the parties and could not fairly try the case. They and Messrs. Bacheller, Slocum, Fadden, Wilcox, Johnson, Seabury, and Sullivan were excused from the trial. Mr. Watson was appointed foreman and spare jurors were excused until 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. Witnesses were sent out of the room until individually called.

Mr. Phillips "opened" for the state. He said the parties had known each other from childhood. They had "gone together," were considered engaged, and even took out a license to be married, rooms having been engaged for them to occupy as soon as married. They were not married, but defendant took advantage of the situation. Then the parties, still unmarried, went to a boarding-house, where they lived as man and wife. Next defendant disappeared, and it was found had married another girl.

At 12:25 a recess to 2 p. m. was taken.

TO COME BEFORE THE COUNCIL.

Recommendations of the Committee of Twenty-Five and the Annual Appropriations.

The Representative Council will hold its appropriating meeting, the second of the year, this evening. The business to come up appears in the notice from the city clerk. There may be other things and there may be no time for other things, after the docket has been disposed of, and yet new things may come in before items on the docket. There promises to be some talk about taxes and tax assessment and what ought to be done.

The recommendations of the Committee of Twenty-Five have already appeared in The News. These include a proposed increase in the salary of the clerk of the highway department of $300, and the Board of Aldermen asks for an increase of $200 in the salary of the engineer of the City Hall. There is a resolution in opposition to the police commission act presented to the legislature, the matter of appointing a committee to confer with the town of Middletown in regard to improving the road and bridge at the creek, the matter of a sewer connection for outer Third street and the north part of the "swamp" district, and a number of petitions for street and sidewalk work which have been before the Committee of Twenty-Five but have not yet reached the Council.

He pleaded not guilty and furnished bail in the sum of $500 for appearance in the district court.

A man who had been unable to obtain work applied to be sent to the state workhouse and was sent up for six months.

A SUBSTITUTE RESOLUTION.

Department of Justice Called on to Regard to Emelter Trust Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The House today adopted a resolution calling upon the Department of Justice to make known whether the department was investigating any "smelter trust" in the United States; whether the American Smelting and Refining Company was connected with it and whether prosecutions were begun or in contemplation. The resolution was a substitute from the judiciary committee for one introduced by Representative Martin, Democrat, of Colorado.

SECRECY REGARDING MATTER.

A Change to be Made in the Missouri Pacific Directorate.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 12.—The St. Louis Republic says today: "A change is to be made in the directorate of the Missouri Pacific at the annual meeting of the stockholders today. The name of the man who will retire was not made known "because," it was said at the offices of the company, "you never can tell what a meeting of stockholders will do." George J. Gould, it was added, "is the only man who can tell anything about the program which is to be submitted to the meeting."

This secrecy by those in control of the road started all sorts of rumors. Recalling stories in circulation some time ago that George Jay Gould was relinquishing control of the so-called Gould lines, it was suggested that he might contemplate dropping the chairmanship of the board of directors of the road, as he had the presidency, in favor of Benjamin F. Bush. That suggestion, however, did not seem to impress many, in view of the statement from authoritative circles that the change would be "unimportant."

GERMAN OFFICERS INJURED.

Fall from Monoplane While Executing a Military Reconnaissance.

BERLIN, March 12.—Two flying men of the German army were severely injured today, while executing a military reconnaissance in a Harlan monoplane. Lieutenant Engwer of the railroad regiment, and Lieutenant Schmitz of the balloon corps ascended from the military aviation ground to make some observations. The motor stopped while they were at a considerable altitude and they were obliged to make an emergency landing, during which the monoplane dashed heavily to the ground and was smashed, the two lieutenants suffering severely. An aviator who was accompanying them in a Wright biplane descended at the same time and rendered first aid, but it is believed that Lieutenant Engwer cannot recover.

ALMOST AN ALL-STAR CAST.

James K. Hackett and His Company Give A Fine Performance of "A Grain of Dust."

An audience which completely filled the Opera House—parquet, balcony and gallery—Monday evening enjoyed a fine performance of Louis Evan Shipman's dramatization of David Graham Phillips's novel, "A Grain of Dust," by James K. Hackett and a good supporting company. It is a strong story and the drama contains the essential features and much of the virile language of the novel. It is a tale of a man who does what he considers the right thing, loses temporarily thereby, and finally conquers his enemy and is brought to a realizing sense of his attitude toward others by the true love of a woman. There are many tense situations in the play and an unusual number of forcibly drawn characters.

The audience was appreciative of the striking features of the production and was not slow in giving expression to that appreciation. At the end of each act there were curtain calls, and the people were not satisfied until all the members of the cast had made their appearance, and then Mr. Hackett was called out alone.

It was in many respects an all-star cast, as any company which include four such sterling actors as James K. Hackett, Edward M. Holland, Frazer Coulter and Frank Burbeck must be, while the others were not all lacking in dramatic abilities to make a well-rendered production. Mr. Hackett as Frederick Norman, the lawyer, was all that could be desired, and the varying fortunes of the character gave him opportunity to show his versatile dramatic power, with little if any semblance of falling from the high standing which he has attained in the past. Mr. Holland, in spite of his 60 years, is still one of the best in his line, and as Willie Tetlow had a congenial part, adding a pleasing view of comedy to the play, which all enjoyed. His facial expressions and many little gestures repeatedly showed the consummate actor. Mr. Coulter as Isaac Burroughs and Mr. Burbeck as Edward Lockyer were excellent, as they always are. Fred A. Sullivan was capital as Timson, the faithful servant of Mr. Norman, and Charles Stedman was good in the comparatively small part of James Galloway.

The women were also good. Izetta Jewel as Dorothy Hallowell, the stenographer, and afterwards as Norman's wife, was new to a Newport audience in a leading part, but at once won the sympathies of all by her natural, graceful acting, with a well developed dramatic force in the more trying situations. There was a special finish to her acting which bespeaks a successful future on the stage. Olive Harper Thorne was pleasingly cast in the part of Mrs. Clayton Fitzhugh and made the most of her opportunity, while Anne Grewe was acceptable in the part of Josephine Burroughs in the few scenes in which she appeared. The minor characters were in capable hands.

The stage settings, showing Frederick Norman's home library and his private law office, were appropriate and added to the success of the production.

RE-HEARING MAY BE ASKED.

Government to Act Through Defeated Parties in Patene Monoply Case.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Attorney General Wickersham indicated today that there was a strong likelihood of a re-hearing being asked of the Supreme Court in the "patent monopoly case" decided yesterday by a divided bench, four to three. He said he had taken the matter up by letter with the parties at issue, asking if a re-hearing was desired. The government, not being a party to the suit, can act only through the defeated parties. The re-hearing would be asked on the ground that a full bench had not passed on the case.

Several bills to curb the monopolizing power of patentees over unpatented articles used in operating patented machines began to show life today in Congress. Some old bills were re-vivified and new ones drafted in response to the appeal of Chief Justice White of the Supreme Court for Congress to change the law, which a majority of the court yesterday found gave patentees practically unrestricted privileges regarding the manner in which the patents may be used.

JAMESTOWN.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Watson Observe Twenty-Fifth Wedding Anniversary in Wakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Clarke Watson, formerly well known residents of Jamestown, recently celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at their home in Wakefield with a family gathering, aided by a few of their most intimate friends. The early part of the evening was spent in an informal reception, Mr. and Mrs. Watson being assisted in receiving by their children, Dorothy Clarke, Beatrice Jeannette and Philip Ellsworth Watson. The rooms were decorated with carnations and rosebuds, an orchestra rendered a program of music, and later in the evening a buffet supper was served by Mrs. Watson's sisters, Mrs. R. W. Chappell of Narragansett Pier and Mrs. M. C. Gilbert of North Grafton, Mass. After supper there were vocal solos by Miss Anne MacDonald of Providence and Master Cary Gilbert. Mr. and Mrs. Watson were the recipients of many gifts of silver and cut glass, Mr. Watson's gift to the bride of 25 years ago being a handsome diamond ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson were married Washington's birthday, 1887, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel H. Clarke, at Wakefield, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Phineas Duryea, then rector of the Church of the Ascension. Mr. Watson was a son of John Eldred Watson, who was for 40 years town clerk of Jamestown. Daniel was engaged in business in Jamestown at the time of his marriage and later was postmaster for several years. In 1901 he and his wife went to Narragansett Pier, where Mr. Watson entered the employ of J. C. Tucker, later removing to Wakefield, where he is at present manager of the Wakefield branch of the business.

Officials of the Providence Telephone Company have been in town adjusting the claim of Mrs. Clara Williamson for injuries, alleged to have been caused by a fall over a broken wire across the sidewalk near her home on Narragansett avenue.

The members of the fire department held another in their series of debates and smokers at Station No. 1 Monday evening. Mr. Albert Boone acted as chairman and Messrs. W. L. Arnold and W. H. Arnold as judges. The subject, "Should a parcels post be established in the United States," was won by the affirmative after a closely contested and interesting debate.

C. E. Weeden has rented for Mrs. Nancy Southwick her cottage on Bryer avenue to Mr. Mantle Fielding of Philadelphia for the season of 1912.

Mr. William Hawkins, who has been employed at the Wetherell cottage several weeks, has completed his work and returned to his home in Philadelphia.

THE WEST SIDE TO GO TO TARRYTOWN.

Mr. Steel of the Hudson Ferry Company is here today, looking at the West Side, which he has bought to run on a ferry at Tarrytown, N. Y. With Captain Walter Loring he went to Tiverton, where the boat has been laid up. Tug Solicitor also went to Tiverton and will tow the West Side and fishing steamer Seven Brothers to the Newport shipyard, where the West Side will be overhauled and the Seven Brothers fitted out for the season. Sloop Halcyon, Gray Bros., at the shipyard, is already fitting out.

CAUSE OF FIRE UNKNOWN.

Summer Home of James Dunne at Green's Farms Burned.

GREEN'S FARMS, Conn., March 12.—The large summer home of James Dunne of New York was burned to the ground here this morning with its contents. The loss is estimated at about $10,000, partially covered by insurance. The family had expected to come to the house next month. There was no caretaker at the place and the cause of the fire is not known.

WAGE RE-ADJUSTMENT ORDERED

Employes of Columbian Cotton Mills to Receive An Increase in Pay.

GREENVILLE, N. H., March 12.—A wage re-adjustment amounting to an advance probably of five per cent has been ordered at the Columbian cotton mills here. The plant employs about 400 hands. The re-adjustment is similar to that announced last night at the Palmer cotton mills, Thorndike mills and Boston Duck Company's plant in Three Rivers, Thorndike and Bondville, Mass. All these mills are controlled by Bliss, Fabyan & Co. of Boston and New York.

HOUR OF GAME TO BE DECIDED.

President of the New York Nationals to Settle Agitation.

NEW YORK, March 12.—John T. Brush, president of the New York National League Base Ball Club, to settle the agitation for starting the base ball games at an earlier hour, has determined to install a double set of turn stiles, one to be marked 3:30 o'clock and the other set 4 o'clock. During the first series with the eastern clubs the spectators will have an opportunity to express their preference for the time of opening the games by passing through one or the other turn stile. In this way Mr. Bush hopes to ascertain the true feeling of the club's patrons with respect to an earlier hour of commencing the contests.

PLANS FOR AIRSHIP DIVISION.

Only the Lack of Officers Available for Army Aeronautics Holds Up the Program.

Only the lack of officers available for aeronautics is holding up plans of the army Signal Corps for the organization of a complete aviation division with 21 aeroplanes. Every effort is being made to obtain officers for training, the eligible list having been opened even to officers of the militia, and it is believed that the division can be formed during the coming summer. No doubt is entertained that Congress will provide money for the purchase of additional machines when they are needed.

Brigadier General Allen, chief signal officer, outlined the proposed plan of organization. The idea is to have one aviation company, operating four aeroplanes, composed of nine officers and 12 enlisted men, besides a property sergeant clerk, cook and assistant cook. There would be six companies divided into three battalions, each battalion under a major and each having its own surgeon.

The army aviators at Augusta, Ga., for the winter are under orders to leave there April 1 for College Park, Md., and about the first week in April they will have settled down for the summer practice. By the time the aviators are ready for them, the five new aeroplanes, which were recently ordered by the Signal corps, will be delivered. This will make a total of 12 machines in the possession of the army, and with the remainder of the appropriation for this year it is expected that three more machines can be purchased.

CRITICISES THE MILITIA.

Secretary Stimson Urges Legislation to Increase Efficiency of the National Guard.

Secretary Stimson Monday urged the House committee on military affairs to recommend legislation to increase the efficiency of the National Guard. He advised the enactment of any law which would add to the interest in the National Guard. In the event of war the country would have to rely on the militia in the long run, and it would be a short-sighted policy to do nothing to encourage the organization of a capable body of reserve troops.

His criticism of the present militia force was that it lacks discipline, organization, has insufficient knowledge of tactics and that state organizations are not up to the standard which should be sought by the federal government. The $4,040,000 which is the estimated cost for a paid militia under the terms of the Hay bill could be much more profitably expended in the maintenance of five cavalry regiments and a reserve of 50,000 men for the regular army, in the opinion of Secretary Stimson.

DIVISIONS IN BOTH PARTIES.

Serious Differences Among Democrats as Well as Republicans.

Progressives Against Conservatives—Renewed Talk of Changing the Inauguration Date.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Those Democrats who are relying upon the row in the Republican party to bring about a condition which may enable them to win should remember that there are serious differences in their own party. I do not refer to rivalries between different candidates, but to those differences between the factions of the party such as the views and contentions of Mr. Bryan on one side and the conservative element on the other.

In Congress Oscar W. Underwood is the representative of the conservative element. As the party floor leader he has been able to hold the majority against the Bryan ideas in every contest. He has earned the reputation of a conservative statesman, and that is what has caused him to loom up on the horizon as a candidate of the conservative wing of the party.

Just as the contest between the contending factions in the Republican party must be settled in national conventions so will the contest in the Democratic party be taken to the Baltimore convention and thrashed out when the platform is considered.

Meanwhile there seems to be a solidifying of forces as to candidates and it is possible that behind each candidate will be ranged delegates having only the main contention in view—that is, whether the party shall be radical or conservative. Harmon and Underwood are now considered the conservative candidates, but it may fall out that these will unite upon Champ Clark in order to defeat Wilson, who is considered the more radical and by many the Bryan candidate.

Another snowy, cold and blustering fourth of March has caused Washington and a lot of other people to cry "Change the date!" meaning the date of inauguration of the President. That has been the cry for a long time, but it has had mighty little effect.

Take the present Congress, for instance, what time has either house to go into the discussion of and carefully prepare legislation providing for changing the date of the inauguration? With it would be coupled the change of dates of meeting of Congress of lengthening the Presidential term, providing for only one term and making an incumbent forever after ineligible, and many other propositions which would cause endless debate. This Congress is now struggling in an effort to get the necessary business transacted so as to adjourn some time before the political campaign is upon them.

Congressman Mann is seen almost every morning going to the Capitol in a street car reading the Congressional Record. As Mann's name appears in the proceedings more frequently than any dozen men, his friends charge him with reading his "favorite author" every morning.

Speaker Champ Clark has been very good to the Democratic members of his own state. Nearly every man with any parliamentary skill or enough to preside has been called by the Speaker to be chairman of the committee of the whole at one time or another. And most of the Missourians have made good.

A peculiarly quaint form of address in speaking of a married woman is noticeable in many of the Southern Senators and Congressmen. Referring to such a one, they always say "mistress" instead of "Mrs.," the word universally used in the North. They say it is a relic of slavery days, as the colored servitors so frequently talked of "my ol' mistus" on the plantations.

The Democratic side of the senate has had no "watchdog" since General Cockrell of Missouri retired from the body. He was on hand all the time, making inquiries about every bill that came up for consideration. Senator Bacon tries to perform this duty, but it is not to his taste, nor does the Georgia Senator keep in close touch with all that goes on in the Senate so as to enable him to know what eevry measure presented contains.

Congressman Ayres of the Bronx district of New York is distancing all the other progressives. He has sent to about 37,000 voters in his district a list of questions asking them how they would vote on all the different questions that may come up in Congress and also as to their Presidential preferences. That is about as much as any one could do in the way of referendum. When the young men in Ayres's office get all that information tabulated the Congressman will know how to vote to please his constituents.

Judge Lovett Too Ill to Leave His Car at Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 12.—Judge C. S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, was too ill to leave his car here last evening. Julius Kruttschnitt and L. E. LONG STANDING DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Disputants in British Coal War Come Together.

Many Difficulties Still in the Way of an Immediate Settlement.

LONDON, March 12.—The disputants in the British coal war, which has involved the throwing out of employment of over 2,000,000 men in England, Scotland and Wales, and has caused the greatest distress among the population, met again today in a round table conference. The meeting was a momentous one, as it established the fact that the long standing deadlock had been broken. It took place at the foreign office at 3 p. m. under the presidency of Premier Asquith.

The coal owners of the federated district, which comprises the purely English collieries, who had already signified the concession in principle of a fixed minimum wage for miners, found no difficulty in accepting the premier's invitation. They had, however, to wrestle strenuously with the Welsh and Scottish coal masters in order to induce them to modify their opposition to a conference with the men, from which the miners had expressly barred the discussion of the principle of a minimum wage. There are still many difficulties in the way of an immediate settlement of the dispute, but the fact that the two parties have again come together and that negotiations are proceeding has served to bring about a feeling of hope.

The miners and coal owners sat in conference for three and a half hours today, without reaching a basis for a settlement of the dispute. The meeting adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow. Sir Edward Grey, Sidney Buxton and Sir George Askwith participated.

COAL STRIKERS IN CONFLICT.

Most Serious Outbreak in the Mining District of Dusseldorf.

BERLIN, March 12.—Collisions between the strikers, the police and the non-strikers are reported to have occurred today in six or eight localities in the coal regions. The most serious conflict was near Hamborn, in the district of Dusseldorf, where, according to dispatches, a mob of 2,000 strikers, who were waiting for the workers, threw stones and bottles and fired revolvers at the detachment of 19 policemen on guard, injuring five of them. The police then charged with drawn sabres, wounding many of the strikers. The workers were stoned and the police used their sabres in dispersing the crowds of strikers at many other points, but the number of casualties is not reported.

Owing to these disturbances the Christian Trades Unions and the mine owners have telegraphed to the minister of interior to send troops or to reinforce the police in the coal district, as the protection afforded to the workers is in their opinion inadequate. The police authorities on the other hand, assert that the police protection is quite sufficient and they minimize the disorders. It is probable the interested parties are painting the situation in darker colors than is justified in order to secure larger forces of police in the district.

The strike is making considerable progress in all districts, many of the mines today working with only one of the three shifts that are ordinarily employed. Arrangements have been made to [illegible] and to prevent disorders.

A [illegible] of the [illegible] district joined the strike today.

The [illegible] have invited a committee representing the [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]. Figures issued today show that the increase of wages demanded by the miners cannot be [illegible] by the financial position of the [illegible].

Eastbound Adams Express Train Side-Swipes Freighter at Branford.

BRANFORD, Conn., March 12.—The eastbound Adams express [illegible] on the Shore Line division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad [illegible] a freight [illegible] down an embankment [illegible]. SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE DELAYED.

Injunction Charges Misuse of the Relief Fund.

Disbursement of Money by the Committee in Lawrence Continues.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 12.—Lawrence still awaits the end of its long-standing textile strike. The end, which appeared in sight a few days ago, has been further delayed by developments yesterday and today. Misunderstanding as to the conference between officials of the American Woolen Company and the strikers' committee prevented such a meeting yesterday, but it was expected that arrangements would be made for a conference at the state house today.

The petition for an injunction restraining the strikers' committee from using the fund of $60,000 for carrying on the strike also involved matters. It was claimed by Strike Leaders William D. Haywood and W. E. Trautmann that this move will do more than anything else to prevent an early settlement of the differences. They further claimed that those interested in securing an injunction are interested in trying to prevent a strike settlement.

As the hearing on the injunction petition is not to be held until Friday disbursement of funds by the strikers' relief committee continued today. Strike leaders said that they would issue a statement of receipts and expenditures today. The statement will not be in detail, they said, because a complete system of bookkeeping has not been followed.

Charges that through a conspiracy relief funds contributed for the strikers were used for purposes entirely different from what they were intended were the basis of the injunction proceedings brought in the supreme judicial court against Joseph J. Ettor, William D. Haywood, William Yates and William Trautmann, leaders of the strike, and Joseph Bedard, and James Sheehan, members of the strikers' finance committee. All the six men have been ordered to show cause why an injunction should not be issued preventing them from further distribution of relief funds and a receiver be named to take charge of the matter.

Contributors to the fund who believe the money has not been properly handled induced Attorney General Swift to permit his name to appear on an information. The information names as relators James M. Prendergast, Rev. Herbert S. Johnson and Robert A. Wood, all of Boston and all contributors to the relief fund.

The plaintiff alleged that the defendants formed a conspiracy and have used a substantial portion of the fund for a purpose not contemplated by the contributors; that the fund has, in part at least, been improperly used for the private and personal benefit of the defendants and their associates; that the defendants, or some of them, have drawn sums from the fund as salaries, a purpose for which they had no right to use the fund; that substantial amounts have been converted for the board and private expenses of the defendant Ettor, and large sums paid for transportation to New York and other cities of children for the purpose of inducing the public more liberally to swell the fund; that large sums have been paid to counsel for defending Ettor and other large amounts turned over to the Industrial Workers of the World.

The plaintiffs say that they have been unable to induce the defendants to disclose the exact nature of the expenditures and they ask that the defendants be restrained from drawing any more money from the Lawrence Trust Company; that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the fund and, under direction of the court, to distribute it in the way intended by the contributors, and that the defendants be compelled to restore all of the sums improperly abstracted by them.

The big crowd which turned out for picket duty today developed no serious trouble up to the time the mills opened. The police in dispersing the crowd when the first signs of [illegible] operations [illegible] a showing of [illegible], but did not have occasion to use them. Except for the officers doing observation work, there was no militia on the streets. There are now about 200 soldiers on duty, under command of Major Charles F. Sargent, Lieutenant Colonel Joy being relieved [illegible].

One arrest was made prior to the opening of the mills, a youth being taken into custody after he had taken an employe's dinner and committed an alleged assault.

Three boys from Biddeford, Maine, who came here looking for work, were found by the police in the Boston & Maine freight yards this morning and held awaiting word from their parents. The lads, all under 16 years old, are Patrick Hegan, Thomas Gelinier and Albany Petain.

The agents of all the mills said that there was an increase in the number of operatives reporting for work. Several of them claimed that they had larger forces at work than on any day since the strike started. The strike leaders disputed these statements, claiming that the strikers were holding their own.

No invitation to the anticipated conference in Boston had been received by the strike leaders up to 11 a. m., but they were on the lookout for it and said that they were prepared to send the same sub-committee, headed by Edward L. Riley, that has participated in previous conferences. If the conference is held a mass meeting of strikers probably will be called for tomorrow to hear the sub-committee's report of the proceedings and take any action desired.

ALL BUT EIGHT EXPECTED.

Forty-Six Labor Union Leaders to Answer to Charges.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 12.—Forty-six labor union leaders, charged with unlawful interstate transportation of dynamite and nitro-glycerine, alleged to have figured in a five-year campaign of destruction against the "open shop" in the structural iron industry, were [illegible] in the federal court. One [illegible] of employers of non-union [illegible] in cities from Massachusetts to California between 1905 and 1911. The most [illegible] of these wrecks was the Los Angeles Times building, October 1, 1910, and 21 men were killed.

Most of the defendants present are former or present officers of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers [illegible] from Workers' [illegible] in Indianapolis.

Thirty-[illegible] were indicted by the federal grand jury and all but eight were expected to be in court to be arraigned at 10 o'clock this morning. The absent defendants were: John J. McNamara, Secretary-Treasurer of the Iron Workers' Association since 1905, alleged to have directed the operations of the "dynamiting crew" from his office here, serving 15 years' sentence in San Quentin prison in California, for having conspired to blow up the Llewellyn Iron works, Los Angeles.

James B. McNamara, serving his life sentence in San Quentin prison for blowing up the Los Angeles Times building.

Ortie E. McManigal, "practical dynamiter," upon whose information the investigation of the plots largely rested.

Eugene A. Clancy of San Francisco, former member of the executive board of the Iron Workers' Association, under indictment [illegible] in California.

Olaf A. Tveitmoe, secretary of the Building Trades Council of California, under indictment [illegible] in that state.

John J. McCray, former member of the executive board of the Iron Workers' Association, whereabouts unknown.

John R. [illegible] and Edward E. Phillips of the Iron Workers' Union of Syracuse, N. Y., [illegible] removal to Indianapolis.

Most prominent among the indicted men here today were Frank M. Ryan of Chicago, president of the Iron Workers' Association; John T. Butler of Buffalo, first vice president, and Herbert Hockin of Detroit, second vice president and acting secretary-treasurer.

In the confessions of McManigal, Hockin appears as having been superintendent of the "dynamiting squad" and custodian of the depositories of explosives in western Pennsylvania, at Tiffin, Ohio, and in this city. Hockin, according to McManigal, was the man that engaged him to do the actual work of dynamiting and laid out his plans before he became acquainted with the McNamara brothers.

With the indicted Iron workers' officials from various parts of the country were four men connected with other labor unions alleged to have been implicated in the conspiracy. They were William K. Benson, former president of the Detroit Federation of Labor; Clarence E. Dowd of Rochester, N. Y., formerly a national organizer of the Association of Machinists; Hiram Cline of Muncie, Ind., a national organizer for the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and Spurgeon P. Meadows, business agent of the Indianapolis District of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Because of the wide interest in the case the court room was crowded before Judge A. B. Anderson came to the bench. Numerous officials of labor unions and representatives of the National Erectors' Association, which has been active in the investigation of the alleged conspiracy, and other employers' organizations were among the spectators.

10—Fractional gains were general at the opening of today's market. United States Steel opened with a block of 2,500 shares at 64⅜ to 64½, compared with 64 at yesterday's closing. Reading opened with an advance of ⅝ and Lehigh Valley, which sold off at the opening, immediately recovered its loss. Declines included Louisville and Nashville and Illinois Central.

11—Room traders operated on a small scale during the first hour, and fluctuations were in keeping with the volume of business. Secondary prices were mostly better, but the slight gains established encouraged some realizing afterwards and the list eased off. Yesterday's vigorous speculation in various industrials was not resumed.

Noon—Trading fell to minor proportions before noon and the market barely maintained an even balance. In none of the active issues did fluctuations exceed fractions. In fact, the only issues to show a range of a point were Western Union and Anaconda Copper. Lehigh Valley, the feature of yesterday's early activity, was neglected, as were many other speculative issues. Bonds were steady. Money on call steady at 2½ per cent. WATER WORKS PLANS.

Cast-Iron Pipes to be Laid to Fort Adams, and from the Paradise Station.

New Pond Site at Lawton's Valley to be Fenced, Preparatory to Making the Storage Basin.

At a meeting of the Newport Water Works Company Monday it was shown that the company has considerable work before it the present year, the main feature being the laying of about three miles of cast-iron pipe. The Harrison Avenue line will be completed; that is, a 12-inch pipe will be laid from Roseneath avenue to Fort Adams, to serve that district as the growth has demanded. From the Paradise pumping station to Easton's pond a 16-inch main is to be laid. Gradually as opportunity offers the more important mains are being made cast iron instead of the former cement-lined pipe, and this will eventually permit a higher pressure than the system can now carry.

Another task, which is larger than may at first seem, is that of fencing in the new pond site at Lawton's Valley. It is quite an area which the company is taking over and little of the present stone walls will aid in enclosing this property. There is also the new pond to be built, but that may and may not be done the present year. A start on this construction cannot be made until fall and perhaps not then. Plans must be completed for the details and then a contract for the work will probably be awarded, for it is unlikely that the company will undertake the job itself.

This new storage basin is to be quite different than those previously constructed, for it will be deep rather than shallow. The dam, on top of which is to run the reconstructed section of the West Main road, is to require a large amount of material, because it will raise the road well out of the valley and eliminate the worst of the grades now encountered at this point. It is expected that much of the material for the fill will come out of the pond location, thus serving the double purpose of making the dam and assisting in providing for a deeper basin. The amount of material to be handled is such that the contractor will probably take to the scene steam shovels and a construction railway, and the place will be a busy one for a while.

Now that the elimination of the severe grades in the roadway seems to be assured, one begins to wonder if eventually this will mean a change in the route of the Newport & Providence railway. A long detour and a private way were necessary to avoid the grade, but it may now be possible to shorten the line by following the road.

PSYCHICAL RESEARCH.

Scientists Organized to Investigate Phenomena in Connection with Rev. Stanton Moses.

The English Society for Psychical Research was organized in 1882 by such men as Professor Henry Sidgwick, professor of moral philosophy and political economy in the University of Cambridge; Frederick W. H. Myers, author of "Human Personality and Its Survival of Bodily Death," a man who was educated for the church in England, but found himself bound to abandon it on account of his skepticism; Edmund Gurney, who was known on two continents for his scientific knowledge of music and art and his general literary culture; Professor Barrett of the University of Dublin, Sir Oliver Lodge of the University at Birmingham, Professor Balfour Stewart of Owens College, Manchester; Sir William Crookes, one of the leading scientific men in England; Dr. Charles Richet, of the Physiological Institute in Paris; Dr. Pierre Janet, of the Salpetriere and successor to Dr. Charcot; Professor Max Dessoir of the University of Berlin, Baron von Schrenck-Notzing of the University of Munich, and Arthur James Balfour, afterward prime minister of England.

Associated with the work were soon found men like George J. Romanes, one of the leaders in the doctrine of evolution in England; Cotter Morison, Andrew Long, Professor Flournoy of the University in Geneva, Switzerland; Professor William James of Harvard University, Professor Charles Minot, of Harvard, Dr. Henry Bowditch of the Harvard Medical School, and a large number of others who had since scientific standing in the world. These men had come into contact with various alleged experiences on the part of private and respectable people, and more particularly knew of the phenomena occurring in connection with Rev. Stainton Moses, a man who had been educated at Oxford University for the church and who was himself for a long time a clergyman in the Church of England.

A large number of phenomena, interesting from any point of view, whatever their explanation, had occurred in connection with Mr. Moses himself. No one could question his character. He was well known to the leaders of the Society for Psychical Research (at that time just organized) and they all felt that it was the scandal of science that such phenomena were entirely disregarded. They also knew of similar stories, well authenticated, such as that of the apparition seen by Lord Brougham at the time of the death of a friend in India. They also knew of a large number of coincidences which seemed to point to some mysterious relation between living minds not explicable in the ordinary way. These known facts were the excuse for making an organized effort to investigate such phenomena and to ascertain what they might mean for science.

LONG-TIME WEATHER PREDICTIONS NOW POSSIBLE.

"The discovery of the South Pole, besides being a geographical achievement, will enable scientists to make long-time weather predictions, which has been an object of work for centuries," says Professor T. C. Chamberlain, head of the department of geology of the University of Chicago. "Heretofore we have been enabled to trace the winds and storms up to the time they entered the Antarctic circle. At this point we lose trace of them absolutely and do not know where to watch for their re-appearance. It now becomes possible to make a complete map of the wind movements over the face of the globe."

SHOULD ATTEND THE INSTITUTE.

School Committee Believes it to Interest of Teachers to be Present.

Census Shows a Slight Decrease from Last Year—Teachers Fear Breakdowns.

The School Committee held its third monthly meeting of the year Monday evening and some business was transacted. Superintendent Lull had something to say about the recent national convention which he attended, and also about the working hours under the state law, which does not allow minors under 16 to be employed after 8 p. m. or before 6 a. m. This, he said, while for the general good of the community, works hardship in some cases and had called for action by the factory inspector. He spoke of the generosity of The Daily News in advertising the Teachers' Retirement Fund. The coming Teachers' Institute called forth considerable discussion. The majority of the teachers do not wish to attend it, but the committee decided that it was for the best interests of the schools that the teachers should attend. There was some talk over the matter of salary of two teachers who are to take a vacation to ward off threatened breakdowns, and this was also unanimously decided.

Dr. Barker presided and there were present Miss Hunter, Dr. Porter, Father Reddy, Dr. Darrah and Messrs. Cozzens, Sullivan, Covell and Stevens.

After the reading of the records Superintendent Lull read his monthly report, which is as follows:

To the Honorable Public School Committee:

The total enrollment for four weeks ending February 23, 1912, was 3,828; the average number belonging 3,517.0, the average attending 3,280.8, the per cent of attendance 93.2, the cases of tardiness 439 and the cases of dismissal 65. The total enrollment (3,828) is a gain of 64 over the enrollment of the same date in 1911.

The rank of attendance and tardiness for February was as follows:

Some provision must be made next year to secure regular attendance.

Visiting.

Since the last meeting of the board the following teachers have visited schools beyond the limits of the city: Misses Bradley, Buchanan, Callahan, M. M. Nuss and Saunders, and Mr. Alger.

Board of Health.

Since the last meeting three cases of scarlet fever and two of diphtheria have been reported. Of the three cases of scarlet fever two, and of the two cases of diphtheria one, were in the public schools. These five cases caused the exclusion of three pupils of the public schools besides those ill.

Coles Lectures.

The first lecture was given March 1. The subject was "What to Eat and How Much." The audience was so large that it overflowed into the physical laboratory. The subject is so vital and the cost of living is so high, it is not surprising that many were interested. The general subject will be continued March 29.

Rogers.

History XIII has received from the State Board of Education 25 copies of "Points of Historical Interest in the State of Rhode Island."

St. Louis.

The annual national meeting of school superintendents was large in numbers, strong in speakers and practical in the subjects treated. It is unnecessary to say that vocational training and choice of vocation held the centre of the platform. Many cities are adapting their work to the industries of their own localities and in the correlation they hope to find a satisfactory answer to the problem of what shall be taught. Others are giving the fundamentals as a general training for any and all industries, but not for a special line of work. In some places already the school department is trying to learn through the teachers the particular bent of the individual pupil, to secure a suitable position after graduation, to follow the graduate in it to see whether he is a success or a misfit, and then to watch the conduct of the industry itself. This is a very complex business and it is at present in only the experimental stage, but it shows one of the coming developments of school administration.

Whenever many hundred men of the same profession or business gather for discussion, it is always a fact that the rubbing of shoulder to shoulder, the exchange of personal experiences and beliefs, and the presentation of methods covering the whole country from ocean to ocean and from the lakes to the gulf must give new ideas and a broader conception of the profession or business, even if the meetings themselves are a failure.

The unfortunate action of the railroads in declining at the last moment to keep their agreement regarding rates worked a hardship to many, but it did not seem to affect the general attendance, which was as large as any in the history of the department. Your superintendent feels indebted to this board for the privilege of being present.

Working Age.

At this particular time it may be well to call the attention of parents and employers of child labor to the following from the "factory inspection law" of Rhode Island: "No child under 16 years of age shall be employed or permitted or suffered to work in any factory or manufacturing or business establishment within this state between the hours of 8 o'clock in the afternoon of any day and 6 o'clock in the forenoon of the following day."

ENJOYING HARD WINTERS.

Geneva Boys Derive Pleasure From Outing to Slate Rock Through Snow and Muddy Fields.

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Dear Sir: I find in the Geneva Daily Times the following: "Ralph Brown, aged 14, of 46 Jefferson avenue, wrote the following true description for his school essay, to show what boys who are used to hard winters enjoy. I copy it for The News:

"For the afternoon of February 17, 1912, an outing was planned by the outing committee of the Junior Department of the Young Men's Christian Association to go to Slate Rock, a little to the southwest of Geneva. The day was mild and the snow was fast melting, making it very wet; the ground was muddy and boggy. In every hollow and in the gutters were little puddles of water, making the day seem damp and dreary, although the sun was shining bright. The troop was composed of 14 boys of various ages, ranging from 10 to 21, who journeyed up South Main street to Glenwood cemetery and crossed through it.

"On the outskirts of the cemetery we encountered many snow drifts and many muddy fields before reaching Slate Rock. Most of the boys had wet feet and some were so uncomfortable as to wish they had never started. About halfway to Slate Rock there was a hill which some of the fellows tried to run up. This was very hard work, as the snow was a foot deep and many dropped out before going halfway up. In about three quarters of an hour of struggling through snow drifts and muddy fields, we came to Slate Rock.

"It was a beautiful scene, the ice completely covering the creek, which was about twice its regular size. The sides were steep and covered with rocks and trees, both large and small. It was very slippery. It was hard work descending to the bottom and when the boys reached it they journeyed up the creek to the falls. This scene excited the admiration of the boys.

"The falls are about 24 feet high and completely covered by a coating of ice. The ice was two inches thick. The sun shining on it helped to make the scene one of exquisite beauty. Above the falls was an iron bridge and on one side of this was a strip of woodland. When the rest of the boys arrived, this strip of woods was selected for a camp. The boys instantly went to work building a fire and cutting wood to replenish it.

"Supper, consisting of 'Frankfurters' and rolls, was then served. The coffee was boiled in a kettle over the fire. The supper on the whole was very good, after tramping about four miles. The 'Frankfurters' were put on sticks, each boy cooking his own, and toasted.

"After an hour's play the boys started on their home trip, arriving at Geneva at 7 o'clock, pretty well fatigued but in good spirits. Altogether this trip was very delightful, as well as giving great pleasure to the fellows going on it.

I hope you will find this of enough interest to print. I spent five years in Geneva as a child and know the walk well.

ALGONKINS ENTERTAINED.

Theatre Party and Dinner Given in Honor of the Winning Basket Ball Team by an Admirer.

The members of the Algonkin basket ball team were given an entertainment Monday evening, in honor of their success in the City League during the past winter, by "Zip" Taylor, one of their loyal supporters. In the early evening the members occupied a box at the Colonial Theatre and then went to Cassim's restaurant for supper.

After enjoying the excellent menu—for all had gone out of training and could eat without restraint—Captain Underwood took the position of toastmaster and introduced the speakers, first himself speaking of the fine work of the team during the past months and expressing the hope that they would hold together for another year. Other speakers were Howard Thompson and Mr. Taylor, and several musical selections were rendered to fill out the evening. Messrs Maher and Underwood sang "The Last Rose of Summer." Oscar Schutz, the team's mascot, rendered a violin selection, accompanied by Lawrence Hickey, and Joseph Kirwin and Maxson Dawley sang a duet.

Before the party separated votes of thanks were extended to Mr. Taylor for his entertainment and to Mr. William Alger for a box of cigars which he gave.

RUNNING THE CONCRETE FOR THE NEW VAULT.

The work of running the concrete walls of the new vault at the Savings Bank of Newport is in progress. The forms being constructed and the railroad iron placed in position, there now remains the filling of the forms with a concrete mixture which will soon harden like rock. The railroad iron is stood on end, so close together that one's arm will not go between two pieces. When the spaces outside and inside the iron and the intersection spaces are filled and the whole mass is set in one complete body, a battering ram would need to work a long while to make any impression on it.

DANISH BROTHERHOOD WHIST AND SOCIAL.

About 75 attended the monthly whist and social given by the Danish Brotherhood in Music hall Monday evening, there being 12 tables in use and many others coming in for the dancing. The prizes for whist were won as follows: First women's, Mrs Britz; second, Miss Wilhelmina Anderson; first men's, Christian Nielsen; second, William Christiansen. During the intermission coffee and cake were served. Music was furnished by Professor and Mrs. Lodter. The entertainment committee in charge were Messrs. Carl Petersen, S. Nickelsen and Niels Larsen.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CASE.

Defendant and His Witnesses Tell a Very Different Story,

Evidence to Show That Robertshaw Was the Aggressor in the Tiverton Mix-Up.

Judge Lee took his seat at 2:17 Monday afternoon and the Maderis case proceeded in the superior court.

Officer Shutt testified. He arrested defendant. Saw no bruises or signs of injury on him; he complained of none. Saw Robertshaw the day of the assault; he had swollen lips and eyes, head bandaged, and two teeth gone. Came to Newport with defendant, who gave himself up through a previous arrangement. The warrant was issued when a cross-warrant was issued against Robertshaw.

Mr. Nolan opened for defendant, presenting a case quite different from that put in by the state.

Defendant took the stand. He started to walk away when told. Robertshaw pushed him and hit him over the head three times with his billy. Had on a soft hat. Much blood issued. Ran over the line. Lost his hat. When witness returned for his hat, Robertshaw grabbed him and was going to hit him with the club. Defendant was afraid of having his head split open and grabbed the officer. Did not hit the officer with the club. Has scars on his head where the officer hit him. Was defending himself when he hit Robertshaw, on the ground.

Next day defendant went to give himself up. Officer Grinnell said he had nothing to do with him. Went again the day after this, and went to Newport with the officer. Defendant has worked 16 years in the same place in Fall River. Officer Robertshaw did not show any badge or arrest witness; he looked to witness to be drunk.

In cross-examination, defendant said he had not seen Robertshaw before November 30. Did not know he was an officer. He said "Get off of the sidewalk." Witness said, "All right," and started. Robertshaw immediately grabbed him, pushed him into the road and hit him over the head. Pushed him into Fall River and then stopped pushing. He tried to hold defendant when he came back into Tiverton. Defendant grabbed the club with his left hand and punched Robertshaw's face with the right hand, holding him down on the ground. Didn't notice that Robertshaw was bleeding or eye bruised or when he knocked out his teeth while "slapping" his face. Didn't notice what sort of a stick it was; head was sort of dazed.

Did not return to Tiverton until 5:30 that afternoon (after dark). Robertshaw appeared to be so drunk that "he wants all sidewalk for hisself." Defendant went to a barber shop in
